DESCENTS TO UNDERWORLD The motif of numerous stories occurring in the mythology and folklore of every people in the world, primitive and civilized, expressing the human belief that death can be overcome and that the dead may return. To partake of the food of the dead (or of fairyland in later folklore) prevented the visitor from ever returning. Among the most famous descent stories are the Greek myths of Orpheus and Eurydice, Ceres and Persephone, and Heracles' bringing of Cerberus up from Hades, the Babylonian story of Ishtar's descent to rescue Tammuz, the Norse myth of Hermod's journey to Hel to bring back Balder. There are similar tales in Hindu, Chinese, and Japanese writings, and among the Amus, Maoris, Melanesians, North American Indians, and Eskimos.
